Decoding the Cheatsheets

Draft Strategy:

When you go into your draft, have the Overall Player Ranking and Team Depth chart cheat sheets with you. As players are taken off the board, highlight their names on each cheatsheet.

Overall Player Ranking Cheatsheet

1. I have arranged the players in each position according to how I feel they will rank for the 2007 Fantasy football season.
2. The number after each player's team is their bye week.
3. Starters are GREEN in color, Backups are RED in color, RB by committee and too close to call are BLUE in color. The superscript <sup>3</sup>, means that the wide receiver is in his breakout third year in the league. The ® is for "Rookie", (INJ) means they is some kind of injury, and © means the player is in a contract year.
4. The statistics next to each player are their previous year's stats, they break down in the following manner:
  - a. Quarterbacks: PassYrds/RushYrds PassTD/RushTD/Int
  - b. Running Backs: RushYrds/RecYrds RushTD/RecTD
  - c. Wide Receivers: Yrds RecTD
  - d. Tight Ends: Yrds RecTD
  - e. Kickers: FGAtt/FGMade XPAtt/XPMade Total Points

Team Depth Chart CheatSheet:

1. All starters are arranged on a single sheet team depth chart
2. Starting wide receivers are RED in color. Starting Running backs have the RB highlighted in YELLOW. As players come off the board, you highlight their names on this cheatsheet as well as on the Overall Player Ranknig cheatsheet. Toward the end of the draft when others are struggling to figure out which starting RB's and WR's are still available, as long as you have highlighted the names and the RB, the remaining starters will stick out like a sore thumb on your cheatsheet.
